IMPACT REPORT
Standing strong in a time of crisis.
ADVOCACY.

"In the face of incredible uncertainty, Prairie State Legal Services was quick to ADAPT to ensure that low-income Illinoisans still received the legal services they needed."
Dear Friends,

2020 was a year unlike any other, and it presented us with challenges that we had not imagined, much less anticipated. It was a year of resourcefulness, resilience, reflection, and reevaluation.

Over the past year, with many businesses and government agencies physically closed to the public and struggling to keep pace with the demand for social services and other life-sustaining assistance, Prairie State Legal Services met the challenges of COVID-19 head on with creativity and fortitude. We stood strong in this time of crisis and continued to provide legal help to thousands of clients whose lives were upended by the pandemic. Even in normal times, there are almost 700,000 people in the 36 counties we serve who live in poverty, but the pandemic caused thousands more to lose their jobs, creating a huge need for legal help with a wide range of issues from unemployment insurance denials to foreclosure.

There has long been a “justice gap”—a lack of resources to adequately help people who are facing important legal problems—and the pandemic only widened that gap. In addition, the pandemic caused courts and government agencies to move their services online, placing them out of reach for many who lacked access due to disability, age, or poverty.

As with many other organizations that provide essential services to the community, we were faced with the challenge of learning how to perform our work in a whole new way. Our talented IT team worked quickly to provide our staff with the tools they needed to work remotely and to expand our ability to communicate with our clients via phone and internet instead of face-to-face meetings. Thus, we made the transition to remote work with little interruption in our services.

Conducting outreach and community legal education has always been part of our strategy to ensure that our clients know and understand their legal rights, but the pandemic required us to develop new approaches and use technology in new ways. We sent email and text blasts to thousands of clients to inform them of their legal rights, and made greater use of social media to get the word out. Thursdays at noon, our staff offered a Facebook Live session with updates on the eviction moratorium and valuable advice to help our clients take advantage of the many programs available to assist with rent, utilities, and other essential needs.

As weeks of quarantine and shut-down turned into months, we heard of the many hardships our clients faced and the fears that kept them up at night. Many clients could not work, due to closed schools and no childcare, and many others suddenly had no job to go to. We heard things like: “I can’t pay my rent and my landlord is trying to evict me, even though I have never had any issues until now.” State and federal eviction moratoria provided protections against eviction, but only to those who could understand and navigate the complex requirements. And, in the face of the eviction moratoria, landlords often took the process into their own hands through illegal lockouts, turning off utilities, and physical intimidation. Our staff helped more than 4,000 clients in 2020 who faced the loss of their home in the midst of the pandemic.

There has long been a 'justice gap'...the pandemic only widened that gap.
While evictions have received much attention in the media, we saw increased demand for many other issues, including problems getting unemployment insurance, food stamps, and medical assistance. The pandemic also caused an increase in domestic violence. During the pandemic, victims of abuse were often isolated with their abuser, and some abusers thought there would be no consequences to their actions. Prairie State was there to help, and in 2020, we obtained protective orders for 803 survivors with 1,246 children. In these cases, we also obtained court orders of support with an annual value of $353,062 to help provide financial support for these victims.

Since the onset of the pandemic last March, Prairie State has provided legal services in 16,436 cases for 14,643 people. But we can’t begin to meet the need alone, and our successes are the product of the support and efforts of many.

We thank the hundreds of attorneys who volunteered their time and talent to provide pro bono representation to 2,122 clients in 2020, with services ranging from brief advice over the phone to extended representation in their court cases. And we are deeply grateful to our donors, funders, community partners, and all those who work to make equal access to justice a reality.

In the following pages you will read about the impact and services we provide to people in the areas of Safety, Housing, Health and Stability. Working together, we were successful in meeting the challenges of 2020, and we are confident that together we will meet the challenges of 2021 and beyond.

OUR MISSION

The mission of Prairie State Legal Services is to ensure equal access to justice and fair treatment under the law by providing legal advice and representation, advocacy, education, and outreach that serve to protect basic human needs and enforce or uphold rights.

Prairie State envisions a community where all low-income people, victims of abuse, veterans, and older adults have ready access to legal services to meet their basic needs and where everyone knows, understands and can exercise their rights and be treated fairly in their pursuit of justice.

"I was able to get a new job because of the services I received from Prairie State Legal Services. They greatly improved my life."

-- Alice

"My attorneys represented me in several civil cases against a neighbor who was harassing me. They were well-prepared, kind, and reassuring. I always felt safe and well-represented."

-- Jan

"I don’t know what I would do without your support."

-- John
Justice.
Since 1977, Prairie State Legal Services has provided dignity, hope, self-sufficiency, and justice through quality civil legal services for low-income individuals.

Every day, people across Illinois are denied the basic rights to which they are entitled under the law simply because they cannot afford a lawyer. It’s our mission to change that.

The availability of civil legal aid can make all the difference to our neighbors who are fighting to stay in their homes, escape domestic violence, secure benefits for veterans or people with disabilities, or address many other legal challenges that go to the heart of their security and well-being. They live in the communities we call home. Our communities are a better place for all of us when help is available when it’s needed.

Prairie State Legal Services is headquartered in Rockford, IL, and has 11 office locations serving 36 counties in northern and central Illinois.

Civil legal aid organizations across the nation provide advice and representation at no cost to low-income people who otherwise would not receive help with serious legal issues related to housing, healthcare, immigration, employment, education, disability, consumer problems, family law and domestic violence.
2020 has been a time like no other in our lives. The pandemic forced millions of Americans into unemployment and poverty, swelling the numbers of those in desperate need of our help. At the same time, the pandemic forced us out of our offices and required us to quickly learn new ways to operate—changes of a scale that few could have imagined.

We stayed in close contact with current and former clients throughout the pandemic, both to address new and continuing legal issues, and to help them access new benefits programs, including federal stimulus funds that were predictably most difficult to access for Americans who needed them most.

We also worked hard to disseminate accurate information, share critical resources, help clients access safety-net benefits, and provide ongoing targeted legal assistance to existing clients. And amidst all of this, the killing of George Floyd (and the reckoning that followed) weighed heavily on our hearts.

And yet, with resourcefulness and dedication, we kept the focus on our mission and ensured access to justice just when it was needed the most.
